> Another posse arrived at Drake's at 6 o'clock this morning, and told Albin that a man named Holliday, living three miles further down, stated that Evans and Morrell had passed his place at 1 o'clock in the morning. There is no doubt that Evans is heading for his old stamping-ground, where he is well acquainted.

Four members of the Hutchinson family were arrested here today-Jim. Will, Henry and Rosle Lee, sister to Jim's wife. It is believed that the plot for Evans's escape was conceived in their house. They are a tough family, nearly every member having been in ail. Jim was seen on the afternoon before the escape riding with Morrell in the team that Evans and Morrell after-

On returning, they claimed that they found the camp with two overcoats, cooking utensils and a quantity of provisions. It is now intimated that the trip was for the purpose of hiding supplies for the occasion.

Mrs. Evans went to Fresno Wednesday at midnight, in answer to a tele-gram from her husband. THE POSSES.

FRESNO, Dec. 29. — News from Sanger is to the effect that the Sheriff and posse are in the hills, and that a pack-train of eight mules loaded with provisions, left there for Sampson Flat at 7 o'clock this evening. This would seem to indicate that the officers are determined, and will continue the chase for several days at least.

Later.—Word has been received at the Sheriff's office announcing that all posses except Scott and his regular depu-ties are coming home. The latter will remain indefinitely.

A BAKERSFIELD DESCRIPTION.

BAKERSFIELD. Dec. 29.—Morrell, who is pretty well known here, is a "hard case." His real name is Smith, and he came here some time ago as an employee of a man from Delphos, O., who had a merry-go-round. He was dischared however, on account of cated in the daring faro-bank robbery at San Bernardino a few months ago, ARRESTS AT FRESNO.

FRESNO, Dec. 29.—A girl named Lee, sister of a young man who had been seen riding with Morrell, the watter who held up the jailer, has been ar-jail delivery. The officers are after her

The reticence of the officials makes it difficult to obtain minute details about the arrests of suspects. It is under-stood, however, that, in addition to the arrest of the Lee girl, two boys named Hutchison are in custody. One of these is Jimmy, the head of the house where the whole plan of escape was con-cocted, and who is a brother-in-law of the Lee girl. He lives on Q street, five blocks from the Courthouse. DETECTIVE AND CROOK.

It is now claimed that Morrell, who played the waiter and caused Evans's release, is a detective, and has been in Evans's service for several months. He was a prisoner in jail for three months, beginning September 22, and it is now thought that he managed to get in jail just for the purpose of reeasing Evans.

Young Cochran's horse and cart were secured at Sanger at 10 o'clock this morning by the officers. From Detective Hume the Associated Press correspondent learns that the waiter, Morrell, is none other than Edward Martin, a noted crook who is well known to the detectives. His de-scription tailies with the following: "Ed Martin, received from San Ber-nardino county in March, 1891; two years and a half for grand larceny age 20 years; occupation , waiter height 5 feet 6% inches; florid complex lon; brown hair and gray eyes; weight 135 pounds; size of foot, 6; high fore-head; thin lips; blue dot between the left thumb and forefinger; blue dot in the knuckle of the left middle finger; small scar on the left upper arm; large mole on the right forearm; scar near the little finger of the right hand; four white spots on one side and three on the belly; a scar over the right eye-brow; a white spot over the left eye; a scar at the base of the left side of the neck and one on the right side of the head. Discharged March 27, 1893. "W. E. HALE, Warden.

"San Quentin Prison, March 28." EXCITEMENT ABATED.

FRESNO, Dec. 29.—The excitement which prevailed here, last evening, on account of the escape of Chris Evans from jall, has now subsided and the quiet, tonight, is as noticeable as the stir of the previous evening. Nothing has been heard from Sheriff Scott and posse since 10 a.m., and it is thought they have followed the bandit and con-federate to Sampson's Flat.

There is little doubt that Evans made for that section, and is now probably with friends. Evans's condition is re-garded as against his roughing it as when in the wilds before. But few when in the wilds before. But few think the officers will take him. If he should be taken alive soon there is little doubt but that he would be promptly lynched, his walter included. City Marshal Morgan, the victim of Evans's bullet, yesterday evening, is doing well, and will not be confined to his room longer than a few days. Mrs. his room longer than a few days. Mrs. Evans has recovered from her fit and is apparently at ease.

The tax-paying people are inquiringinto the cause of this and similar cases, wherein convicted criminals obtain their liberty. When Judge Holmes had George Sontag hurried to Folsom he Mrs. Evans, in an interview, denied absolutely that she had any hand in the plan for the escape, and that she see now that he was right in the matter.

The court reporter comes in for his share of blame in the Evans case, for if he had had his notes complete sentence would have been passed and Chris would have been safely behind the State's prison bars instead of a free

CALLING FOR ASSISTANCE. IN THIS CITY.

The Roscoe Affair Believed to Be Part of th Plot. were no new developments

There yesterday in the search for the Roscoe train-robbers. In fact, the sensational escape of Chris Evans from the Fresno jail monopolized official attention, and but little else was talked about at the Evans, said last night that Bill Dalton assisted in Evan's escape, and that he helped Grat Dalton out of the Visalia

Sheriff's office or the police headquarters. The railroad and express detectives are still in the city, but may go north at any moment, in fact may have gone last night: They are much put out over the affair, and do not put out over the affair, and do not hesitate to express themselves very plainly.

In view of all the circumstances it is not an improbable theory that the Roscoe job was part of the scheme to secure Evans's release. Of course, the Roscoe robbers would not have jected to making a good haul, but the main thing, it is now believed, was to divert attention from Evans, and draw the officers away from the scene of his confinement. If such was the case, the scheme succeeded admirably, for the detectives promptly reported in Los Angeles, leaving the coast clear. Another singular coincidence was the fact that Sheriff Scott was also absent from Fresno, he having come to this city Thursday to take back a vagrant, who had escaped from the chain-gang. It is not believed by the officers here that Morrell, who assisted Evans to escape, was actually engaged in the Roscoe affair, but it is believed that he and the men who did hold up the train are members of the same gang, and that the rescue of Evans was the main point to be accomplished.

The usual exchange of compliments between the rebel warships and the government forts continue with about the same results. Gama's forces number 1200, and he proposes keeping the government in check by harrassing the troops on Litterol until the arrival of the insur-gents from the south, and then attacking northward. Gama, if able to hold out until the arrival of the insurgent reinforcements, will probably meet with success. The present position of the in-surgents at Rio, however, is critical. At his residence there was a constant procession of visitors. BERLIN, Dec. 29.—(By Cable and Associated Press.) The Neue Nachrichten of Munich, December 5, announced on the Sunday previous, December 3, that at Ganga Princess cember 3, that at Genoa, Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria, had been married to Lieut. Seigfried Auf Puttenheim of the Bavarian army. This news caused a decided sensation, as the Princess is a granddaughter of the Emperor of Austria, as well as the granddaughter of the Prince Regent of Bavaria.

The sensation which the report of the marriage created, however, is as nothing to the consternation caused in imperial and royal circles today by the announcement made by the Germania, the chief organ of the Clerical party, which declares that Princess Elizabeth was not married to Lieut. Seigfried, and that she is not now married to him, although they are living together. The Germania adds other news which is undoubtedly most painful to the relatives of the Princess, but as it is not fit to be published, it is not contained in these dispatches.

Found Guilty by the Jury an Chicago.

The Verdict Upsets Prendergast's Nerves.

He is Half-carried from the Room.

The Deliberations Occupy an Hour, Birt the Findings Were Agreed to Unanimously-Interviews and Press Comment.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.-(By the Association) clated Press.) Prendergast, the murderer of Carter H. Harrison, will be hanged for his crime. The verdict of the jury said it, and the people Chicago approve it. Ably defended, as evidence adduced to save his neck has een, the jury found him sufficiently sane to be responsible for his action, and demanded he pay the highest penalty for the offense against the law. This, however, is a sorry recompense for the life of Carter H. Harrison. Nothing since the commission of his rime has so irritated Prendergast as the comparison between himself and Guiteau. But in the courtroom, this afternoon, he showed that one trait existed in common between them. He proved himself an unmanly, miserable coward who would save his own life

When Clerk Fitzgerald arose to read he finding of the jury, the prisoner stood clutching the back of his chair. is face flushed, and his knees trembling violently.

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Patrick Eugene John Prendergast, guilty of murder in manner and form as charged in the indictments, and fix the penalty at death," read Fitzgerald.

Then Prendergast revealed himself an utter coward. His face turned pale, he opened his mouth to speak, but only a faint murmur came. He moved slightly, and would have fallen, but or the assistance of the bailiff. When the jury was polled he listened with avidity to each and every answer to Judge Brentano's question and, as each juror in turn reiterated the ver dict, the last stage of courage left Prendergast. He was half led, half carried back to his cell where, refusing to speak, he threw himself upon his bunk in an attempt to hide from his fellow-prisoners, whose expressions of satisfaction over the verdict were more emphatic than graceful, and more

THE CLOSING SCENES

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(By the Associated Press.) Attorney Trude, in the argument for the prosecution this morn-In the course of his remarks he had occasion to refer to Henry George, the great single tax advocate, whom he characterized as "a migratory and pestilential paranolae."

He closed his address to the jury with an eloquent plea for the conviction of Prendergast, who, he declared, had been proven sane by a preponderance of evidence. The court then took a recess till 1 o'clock, and promptly at that hour Judge Brentano began his charge to the jury. Prendergast buried his face in a black handkerchief and did not look up till, at the close of the judge's charge the word "death" was uttered, and the prisoner looked up for an instant.

Upon the question of insanity, which was the main point of issue; Judge Brentano said that if the jury believed the defendant committed the crime as charged, knowing it wrong, it was the duty of the jury to find the prisoner guilty, even though they believed at at the time the crime was committed the prisoner was not perfectly sane, but if the jury believes that at the time the act was committed the prisoner was not of sound mind, but affected with insanity, and that such the defendant committed the crime as affection was the efficient cause of the act, then the prisoner ought to be acquitted. If the jury had any doubts as to the prisoner's sanity, the law gives him the benefit of the doubt. If the jury believed the defendant was laboring under a delusion which de-prived the accused of the power of choosing between right and wrong, then the jury must acquit him. At 1:30 the jury retired to consider a verdlet. Nothing was heard from them for exactly an hour, then Bailiff Busse hurried through the room to notify the jailer to bring the prisoner DASTARDLY WORK.

WOULD NOT TALK. CHICAGO, Dec. 29 .- "Please ask th gentleman to excuse me. I would pre fer not to see or talk with anybody to night." This was the verbal response of Prendergast as he sat in his cell tonight, to a written message to the effect that the Associated Press would be pleased to receive any statement Prendergast might be disposed to make. The reporter who sent in the message followed Night Jailer Foltz into the cage and heard the reply as above spoken, in a clear, calm tone, very much as any man might decline to be interviewed.

ndergast, when removed from the uctroom, was placed in cell No. 11, facing the visitor's cage. Just inside facing the visitor's cage. Just inside the cell he sat, while on the outside was posted the death watch. If the prisoner had any conception of the real significance of this extra watch, he gave no sign. He appeared perfectly at ease, with no trace of excitement, distress or anxiety upon his forbidding features, having had five hours in features, having had five hours in which to regain his composure since the verdict was rendered. A few minutes after he was placed in his cell, his brother, John Prendergast, was admitted. The brothers grasped hands, and neither spoke for a time. Then John said: "Don't lose hope, Gene; we will do all we can for later the assassin's lawyers called and did what they could to cheer him up. Tomorrow, Prendergast will be given a cell in the murderer's row, and will have for his nearest neighbors, Painter and Higgins, two men under death sentence for murder.

How the Verdict of the Jury is Received at CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(By the Associated Press.) In an interview, tonight, Attorney Trude said: "The conviction of this man will, in my opinion, operate as a detriment against the commission of like crimes by notoriety-loving cranks. Since the trial of Prendergast has been in progress, cranks have risen all over the country, threatening mayors, chiefs of departments and men of means. This verdict will operate as a life insurance policy on their safety. A verdict of acquittal, on the ground of insanity, would be a sowing of dragon's teeth, and the threatened mayors and others would be in danger of losing their lives."

Members of the late Mayor's family were apparently expecting such a verdict as was given, and seemed to derive little satisfaction from the fact that the murderer was to die for his crime, feeling that only justice had

Carter H. Harrison, Jr., one of the proprietors of the Times, in discussing the verdict, said: "I am not surprised at the verdict because, to my mind, there was never the least doubt as to the man's legal responsibility when he committed the act. "Yes, I have. I would say simply this, the verdict is very gratifying to me, and should be so to every citizen as a vindication of the supremacy of the law. It is a verdict which does great credit to Chicago, and demonstrates, as did her action in the case of the Anarchists, her fearless and de termined effort to make her municipality safe for life and property. That is all I have to say."

Russell Sage was somewhat surprised when informed of the conviction of Prendergast. He said: "I think he deserves it if ever anyone did. His pre-tensions of insanity were made up in order to gain the sympathy of those who might believe in him. I think the influence of the verdict will be a wholesome one. It will teach the masses to have no sympathy for cranks; that they are responsible to the law which is the bulwark and protection of our lives. and liberty and its influence will be restraining to them and make them lead the lives of good and respectable

THE HOWARDS. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29. — A re-porter visited the Howard mansion on St. Charles avenue immediately after the receipt of the news of the result of the Prendergast trial. Miss Annie Howard, the bereaved fiancee of the as-

He is satisfied that the decision of the court in which the question of legality will be tried, will be in their favor, and the club intends to give Gov. Mitchell a run for his money. At a meeting held this afternoon the club decided upon this move: The contest between the champions will take place at 11 o'clock on the morning of January 25. It is thought this will be an advantage to spectators both in matter of light and the means of transportation to the arena. COLGATE HEARD FROM.

What Purports to Be a Message From Car-lin's Cook Discovered. KENDRICK, (Idaho) Dec. 29.—(By the Associated Press.) This morning a party of three men, with three pack-horses, started for the Clearwater country to search for George Colgate, the cook for the Carlin party, who was left in the mountains. Today's party was inspired by a remarkable letter picked up in a bottle at Perewawa, sixty miles below Lewiston, purporting to beye been written by Collecte U. to have been written by Colgate. It is as follows:

"Foot of Bitter Root Mountains, Nov. 27.—I am alive and well.
Tell them to come and get me as soon as anyone finds this. I am fifty miles from civilization as near as I can tell. I am George Colgate, one of the lost Carlin party. My legs are better, and I can walk some. Come soon. Take this to Kendrick, Idaho, and you will be liberally rewarded. My name is George Colgate, from Post Falls. This bottle came by me, and I caught it, and wrote these words to take me out. Direct this to St. Elmo Hotel, Kendrick, Idaho.

"GEORGE COLGATE.
"Good-bye, wife and children." This message was in a small bottle, corked with a wooden stopper, and fastened to a piece of driftwood with a rag. It was immediately brought to Kendrick. Col. Normerile compared the signature with Colgate's autograph on the hotel register, and the likeness was found to be wonderfully close, Col. Nornerile promptly offered to contribute supplies to a relief party, and three men as quickly volunteered to make the perilous effort. They are Charles R Pittman, Albert Taylor and Ned Colb.

The letter in question was dated fifteen days after the abandonment of Colgate by his companions.

THE BOOK OF JOB. Careless Copying and Jewish Orthodoxy Re-sponsible for Much Disfigurement. Probably no portion of the Old Testa-ment has come down to us in so corrupt a condition as the book of Job. Parts of it are jumbled together for all the world as if they had been written on world as if they had been written on small scraps of paper, which, the wind having blown them asunder, were joined together haphazard. Speaking in the light of the important discoveries of Prof. Bickeh, who has devoted the best years of his life to its study, the Contemporary Review lays it down that the disfiguring changes which the work Contemporary Review lays it down that the disfiguring changes which the work has undergone have a twofold source—deliberate attempts to blunt the sharp edge of the author's criticism and render the poem palatable to Jewish orthodoxy by means of considerable excisions and still more considerable interpolations, and the removal of later glosses from the margin of the manuscripts to the text in consequence of the scripts to the text in consequence of the carelessness of copyists. The dates of these alterations vary considerably; some of the most important of them had been effected in the Hebrew original before the poem was first done into duced later on. The latter category would naturally be lacking in the Sep-tuagint version, which, had it come down to us in the condition in which it left the translators' hands, would have left the translators' hands, would have materially furthered the work of restoration. Unfortunately Origen, acting upon the gratuitous assumption that the missing passages had formed part and parcel of the original text and were omitted by the translators because they failed to understand their meaning. took them from Theodotion and inserted them in the seventieth version, merely distinguishing them by means of aster-isks. These distinctive marks disappeared, partially or wholly, in the course of time, and at the present mo-ment we possess but five manuscripts in which they are to some extent pre-heless proved a success in

The Christmas tree and exercises at the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, although a little late, never-and friends, and each scholar got a present, either a book or a toy, with appropriate gifts for the larger ones. There was quite a scare occasioned, and no little complaint, during the few rainy days, when the cable-car service was reduced from a six-minute to a ten-minute schedule.

Yesterday, however, the weather was fair, and the cars were run as usual, the temporary change having been merely an economical measure adopted on account of the mad and consequent light travel.

G. Rosas, who lives out by the reservoir, at the end of Downey avenue, was arrested Thursday by Capt. Mo-Keag, on a warrant charsing him with disturbing the peace of a neighbor, J. Merandette. The trouble is the revival of an old feud, and will be settled in the Police Court this afternoon, Rosas being released meanwhile upon his own recognizance.

Go to the Mountains.

The least expensive and best treat to give your visiting friends is to take them over the wonderful Mt. Lowe Railway, where, from Echo Mountain and Mt. Lowe, the best possible and most accurate idea of the country can be obtained. On this road, you can see more in one day than by any other means of travel in a month. See time-table Terminal and Mt. A DISGRACE TO THE STATE.

Another act has been played in the tragio-comedy of Chris Evans, the ban-tired of confinement in the bastile at Fresno, the climate of which is not so pleasant as that of the Sierras, made

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

Perhaps there is nothing that illusgrates more fully the advancement of than the larger opportunities and the higher place which to woman, Almost every field of human action has been opened to her during past quarter of a century, and she is debarred from nothing for which her capacity and education fit her. Even the political arena is gradually yielding her a footbold, and she is fighting political battles armed with the keen and incisive weapons of her ready wit and quick tongue. Here in America she is given the largest liberty to make the most of herself, and without let or hindrance she has been permittee a nomination for the highest place within the gift of the people.

And yet, no longer ago than 1860, so a medical publication declares, no woman doctor was able to make a living by her profession, and there was even a disposition to refuse office room to such as sought practice.

But today in every large city of the country may be found many successful women physicians earning a generous and frequently taking their places with men as instructors in our medical schools and colleges. The trend of woman's footsteps in these latter days of the and broader action. It is the golder age of woman's enlightenment and progressive action, and the world will be better and wiser for this change, for the general uplift of the race is measured by the place which woman holds in the community. Her elevation means the elevation of the whole.

is in the community. Her elevation cans the elevation of the whole.

But the later hours are balmy and delightly and such as the later hours are balmy and delightly and such as the leading hotel, and tender him at the local theater. After the early morning hours exhibit to the fullest extent very much of a semi-tropical character. bandit will probably take to his old stronghold in the mountains, where he appears to have plenty of sympathizers. Judging from past experiences, the Should he be taken, his captors would be excusable in settling the question, once for all, by suspending Mr. Evans from the limb of a convenient tree.

It is amusing to note in what a cool and business-like manner, and without any diplomatic flourish of trumpets, Great Britain from time to time gobbles up another slice of a continent or a group of islands, to add to her already overgrown empire. A few days ago there was some excitement in regard to the reported seizure of the Gil-brt Islands, in the Pacific Ocean, by the British. The announcement now comes from London that the whole group was formally annexed by Great Britain in June, 1892, and has been in the possession of that country ever since. The British government must be something in the same position as our multi-millionaires, who can never tell from day to gay within a million o two of how much they are worth.

In view of the numerous, glaring and outrageous miscarriages of justice which have characterized the actions of American juries in dealing with criminals during the past few years, and the dangerous growth of misplaced and maudlin sympathy toward men whose hands are red with blood, it is en-couraging to learn that the jury in the Prendergast case has promptly found that murderer guilty, with sentence of death. Now let the sentence of the law be carried out, without unreasonable delay, and let us have an end of this attempt to make martyrs and heroes of assassins. The theory of "emotional insanity" is an apology for and an encouragement of crime.

The state of affairs now prevailing at Rio de Janeiro reminds one of the stories of war and pestilence during the middle ages. To add to the horrors of bombardment, the city is now afflicted with a virulent form of vellow fever. Meantime, neither of the tending parties appears to be gaining any advantage. It looks as if some of the great powers would have to interfere before long, in the cause of humanity. This is a task which would most appropriate for the United States, as the Brazilians are naturally very jealous about interference on part of any European nation, and, indeed, that feeling prevails in this coun

AMUSEMENT RECORD. AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

LOS ANGELES THEATER.-It is ot often, out here on the far edge of the wild and woolly West, that the people who go to the theater are granted a chance to see a new play launched, and especially one that contains so much chance to see a new play launched, and especially one that contains so much promise as the three-act farcial comedy, "The Bridegroom," which Charles Dickson "tried on" us last night at the Los Angeles Theater. As yet the author has not revealed himself, but he should get out in the open, where the public can "fix him with a stare," for there's something in him.

"The Bridegroom" is an innovation, for it is a comedy of complications—in fact a very nightmare of them—without a suggestive line, or a situation that approaches the risque, as is the rule with the fin de sleele successes which America has adapted from the polluted dramatic sources of France. It hasn't a baby in it with a shadow of mystery on its parentage, nor a wife or two who is considerably more speedy than is meet for the conventions. To be sure it is racy of the turf, as exemplified in the character of Nathaniel Tugstock, of the New York Horse Exrather than the exception. In fact it has got so far in this State that a man he may be sure to find a number of misguided humanitarians to intercede for his worthless life. We do not sure it is racy of the turf, as exemplified in the character of Nathaniel Tugstock, of the New York Horse Exchange (more familiarly known as "Butch.") but it is a fresh and breezy raciness, without the blemish of even a solitary d—n; and the people in it have no pasts to hide nor no futures to fear—unless, we except Lemuel Bigneld, the publisher of theological works, who showed indiscretion in borrowing money from "Butch" to bet on the races. past ten years. The list would be an appallingly long one. Of these, after long and wearisome delays, perhaps 10 per cent. have been finally condemned to death. But to be condemned to death in California by no means implies that the man will be hanged. Not at all! It is merely another move in that game As in all comedies of this class, "The As in all comedies of this class, and Bridegroom" contains impossible people, as in the case of the female fright, Sarah Tugstock, and the simpering idiot, Jason Pontifex, the theological student; it likewise contains impossible situations and some bits of horse-play, but the people make comedy. of jugglery which the lawyers play bandage and scales. Any good criminal lawyer knows half a dozen ways to pro-long the conflict after his client has situations and some bits of horse-play, but the people make comedy, the situations are laughable; and the horse-play does not predominate. The first act is full of possibilities, but needs: cutting, especially its first half. It needs the interpolation of some bits of business and an increase of action. The act's climax is original and wildly funny. The spectacle of a young fellow trying to pass himself off for an Irish servant girl's brother, when she has never seen him before, and his attempting to embrace her before a roomfull of people, whereupon she lights into him with all the ardor of a Celt, and the agility of a female with a taste for hair-pulling, may sound fame in the telling, but when played by Mr. Dickson and Mary Ann McClosky (Daisy Zublin.) it is one which sets the house in a roar, and was followed by a hearty curtain call last night. The second act is by far the strongest in the play. It opens with spirit, and the complications follow each other rapidly and consistently. The lines are bright and witty, and the curtain drops amid shrieks of laughter. It is the climax of fun in the piece, and did the last act fulfill the promise made by the second the play would be a howling success. That it may yet be made so, it is entirely possible, but as it now stands, the third act, which opens well, weakens at its close, and the stinger in the epigram's tail doesn't sting. The advent of McClosky is good, clean comedy, and he is a character who should be elaborated. The hour at which this is written prevents consideration of the play's story or elaborate discussion of the players, but more extended mention will be made of both in this journal's dramatic columns tomorrow. The dressings of the players were handsome, and the stage settings, unchanged throughout the three acts, were excellent, as is the rule with all the plays which Mr. Dickson presents.

This afternoon "Admitted to the Bar" will be given, and the beautiful drama deserves a big house. Tonight the engagement will close with Mrs. Dickson and its a been condemned to death, and he will use them without fail, provided his clithe situations are laughable, and the ent has money, or can raise it among his friends. Thus it has come to pass that, in spite of all the bloody and atroclous murders which we read about almost daily, the hanging of a murderer is so rare an event as to create : genuine sensation when it occurs. Once in a while a Chinaman is offered up as a victim, but for a white man to be hanged, no matter how atrocious his crime is, is considered almost in the Now that Evans has made good hi scape, the drama of "Evans and Sonwill need to be supplemented by will be something stirring and excit-ing in this, and the action and daring of the desperado will thrill the heart of the small boy, and kindle within If there could be any text book of rime better calculated to incite in the minds of imaginative youths the desire for such deeds of lawlessness as are depicted in this so-called drama, and the purpose to undertake them, it has yet to be written, and the addition of this latest art in the bloody contest between outlawry and fastice is all that It is an enduring shame to the great commonwealth of California that this play of "Evans and Sontag" was ever permitted to be placed upon the stage permitted to be placed upon the stage, and, that in this State, where the crimes of these outlaws were com-mitted, paying audiences could be found to witness the representations of the villainy so long unpunished. It does escape from justice, young America will consider him more of a hero than ever, and the drama will silently and insiduously do its work.

Under such circumstances it is no wonder that such men as Evans flourish, and that many others are encouraged to imitate them. As to the system which permits a criminal under sentence of life imprisonment to eat restaurant suppers in the corridor, with his wife, and to have a loaded pistol supplied to him, that is something which the Fresno authorities should be called upon to explain. It is somewhat of a wonder that they did not engage rooms for Mr. Evans at the leading hotel, and tender him a benefit at the local theater. After what has happened, scarcely anything would create surprise. Meantime, this Tortured Children.

Some New Facts About the County Hospital Management.

A Scheme to Oust the Incumbent to Make Room for Another Man-Some King's Daughters Who Thought Patients Well Used.

The County Hospital investigation The County Hospital investigation was taken up again before the Board of Supervisors yesterday morning.

The depositions of Andrew Ames and Jacob Werling were read, as taken at the hospital on the afternoon previous. That of the former was to the effect that he entered the institution last lune. The nurse paymed Jones treated June. The nurse named Jones treated him roughly for a period. He was un-able to go to the bathtub, but was kept reasonably clean. The food brought to him was usually cold before reaching him. In the cross-examination, the deposttion stated that Dr. Hagan had a number of times talked with him about his trouble. He was satisfied that his disease was incurable.

The deposition of Jacob Werling was to the effect that he was in the institution a number of days before he was given medical treatment. He had no great complaint to make. He admitted that Dr. Hagan had been the first to tell him he was suffering from locomotor ataxia, an incurable disease. He also admitted that his case was diagnosed by Dr. Brainard as one of rheumatism. disease was incurable.

At this time, Dist.-Atty. Dillon announced that the Mrs. Brown whom he had mentioned the day before was still too sick to come. The prosecution would, therefore, rest.

The first witness for the defense was Mrs. Weston of No. 212 South Broad-way. She testified that since last March she had made about eight visits March she had made about eight visits to the institution. She had done so for the purpose of giving any little aid or comfort she could to the infirm and sick. She had not catechised the pattents, but had observed the condition of things about the place. Witness, when visiting the hospital, was always treated courteously by the attendants when visiting the hospital, was always treated courteously by the attendants there. She had met Dr. Hagan a few times. She had for a short time been a member of the organization known as the King's Daughters. When she first visited the institution she thought the place looked rather primitive. As she continued to visit there, the conditions did not impress her as so primitive.

Cross-examined by the attorney for the prosecution, witness denied having told Miss Hamilton, after her first visit, that the place was simply revolting. Witness had visited hospitals in the East, and upon comparing the hospital here with them she had observed that the nurses here did not wear white caps and aprons and thinsoled shoes, as they did in places she had visited there. They did not appear to be as tidy here. Witness had several times been at the institution at meal time, and thought the food furnished in the wards, which places were where she saw it, was good and appropriate for sick people. It came to the patients warm.

Mrs. Patton of No. 212 South Broadway testified that she had visited the hospital a number of times. Asked as to what conditions she observed there she said she had not noticed particularly. She had gone there for the purpose of talking with patients to cheer them, and also to carry any little delicacies she could. When she had visited the institution she had made it a practice to go first to the office and ask permission to visit the wards. She had often met Dr. Hagan in the office, and he had treated her very kindly.

Cross-examined witness admitted she was a friend of Mrs. Hagan. Witness had visited the place in company with Mrs. Weston, who had just testified. On the occasion of their first visit, that lady had remarked to her that "This was nothing, in comparison with the hospital in, New York," but had not said anything to her about the sight. Cross-examined by the attorney for reason that she had had her name proposed by another lady. She supposed, however, she was a member. The food furnished patients looked nice, and smelled nice. She thought the nurses treated patients very kindly.

Mrs. Mrs. Berg, a nurse in the hospital, testified that she remembered a girl with vermin in her hair being brought to the place. Witness had charge of the case, and Dr. Hagan told her to put salve on instead of washing the child's head. She could use hot water up to 8 o'clock at night for baths, and if new cases were brought in later, they could be given sponge baths. During the first two or three months of Dr. Hagan's administration, witness thought the wards were not quite as clean as at other times. The quality of the food furnished under the Brainard and Hagan managements, respectively. and Hagan managements, respectively was, as far as she could see, not different. She had received her instructions, in reference to the care of patients, direct from Dr. Hagan. He had directed her to give special diets to the very sick patients. Some of these were to be fed every hour, and some of them every two hours. She remembered that a patient, named Gorman, had been given a special diet. Witness had seen Mrs. Landt at the hospital a number of times. As the witness was employed in the upper wards where the female cases were, and as Mrs. Landt did not often come to those wards, she had not seen her frequently. Witness usually had charge of the half-foolish girl named Mary. The girl was hardly ever permitted to go about below, and did not associate with the men. Witness remembered giving a Mrs. Haggett, one of the patients, a special diet, in addition to her regular diet. Dr. Hagan had always answered when she had called him.

On cross-examination witness stated she could always get hot water in the laundry, she could get hot water from the kitchen, by asking to have it turned on from there. Witness took the place of Mrs. Reddick. There were then twenty-five patients. She did not find it hard to do the work. There were then twenty-five patients. She did not find it hard to do the work. There were then twenty-five patients, and she had three assistants. These assistants were those who were students, practicing with the intention of becoming nurses. Dr. Hagan regularly visited her wards three times per day—morning, noon and night. She was sure of it, for she had seen him. She admitted having talked with Dr. Hagan about the case. He had asked her if she remembered certain things about it. Witness was at present looking after the foolish girl, Mary, during the day, but could not swear as to where she was at night. She had never seen Ralph Hagan in the women's ward. Dr. Parsons came there, professionally, regularly. and Hagan managements, respectively was, as far as she could see, not dif-ferent. On redirect questioning winness said that in the case of the old Spanish woman, who was nearly blind, not having any sheets on her bed, it was the fault of the woman. She would tear them, and not keep them on. The Mrs. Warren, a daughter of Mrs. Harding, who was in the institution for a time, was treated by Dr. Hagan, and had food the same as the other patients. Witness never knew of Dr. Hagan turning a woman from the hospital before she was ready to go. In the case of the closet in the women's ward overflowing, it was because the same was stopped. The matter was attended to promptly. In the case of the girl, named Lunt, who had been treated for diphtheria, witness gave her a bath shortly before she left. This was done in the bathroom, and the girl's underclothing was taken away and down stairs. What was done with it then, witness could not state.

A recess was taken at this time, till 1:30 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Upon reassembling, Miss Carrie L. Bowles was called. She testified that she was a student nurse in the hospital for several months, and had been a regular nurse since last May. The foolish girl, Mary, was under her charge while she was night nurse. The girl was a sound sleeper and did not leave her bed during the night at any time within the knowledge of the witness. Mrs. Warren was in charge of witness, who told her she would get anything for her that she could. Witness gave her eggnog regularly at night. Besides the medicine prescribed for her by Dr. Hagan, the patient once showed her a bottle of something she said Mrs. Beardslee had given her for her cough. She said she thought it ought not to have been given her, and witness said she thought she (Mrs. Beardslee) ought not to have given it to her. Witness had an opportunity to observe Dr. Hagan's conduct toward patients, and saw that he was courteous to them. The student nurses were under the instructions of the regular nurse. They were entitled to their board, lodging and laundry, but were not given any pecuniary compensation for their services. With the exception of two or three days, when he was suffering from an attack of grip, Dr. Hagan came to the ward regularly and daily. The hospital was kept clean.

Cross-examined as to with whom she had talked as to what she would testify, witness said she had talked only with Dr. Hagan. Witness knew of the foolish girl, Mary, being away from the ward twice during the day-time. It was difficult to keep her in her ward. As far as she knew no nurse had ever been paid from the outside for giving special attention to Upon reassembling, Miss Carrie L. Bowles was called. She testified that a slip of paper and asked if the writing thereon were hers. Witness admitted it was, but said she had entirely forgotten about it.

The writing, being read, was in the form of an order signed by the witness requesting the payment of $5 for special attention given a certain patient.

Witness said it was a case which Witness said it was a case which was in the hospital when she was a student nurse. The woman patient was in a dangerous condition, so that at times it was difficult to control her. The patient's mother hired the witness to care for her at a time when she (the witness) was not employed at her regular duty. Such cases necessarily were otherwise kept in charge of a man nurse.

Redirectly examined, witness said she never knew of a case where a woman patient was compelled to do more than she was able. She thought the patients were as well used under Dr. Hagan as under Dr. Brainard.

The girl with vermin in her hair was bathed, all except her head, before being put to bed. The next day her hair was cut and her head treated nicely. The bedstead had a disinfectant applied to it and the sheets were washed.

Mrs. M. E. Berg was recalled, and asked by the prosecution if she remembered the case of a patient named Susie Ingle, to whom Dr. Hagan attempted to give a hypodermic injection, and twice broke the needle, so that he had to get another, and, further, that the girl cried out that she was smarting from the pain. Witness remembered Dr. Hagan administering an injection, but had no recollection of any such circumstance as set forth by the questioner. Witness was further asked if she signed a statement as published in The Times of July 15, together with her signature, in which statement it was said that the wards had always been kept scrupulously neat and clean. She said she was asked if she could consistently sign such a statement to do so: but if not, then not to do so. She did not read the statement before signing it, but was told about what she understood the bit scontents. She also understood the statement to cover only the time she had been at the hospital, which time began about three months after Dr. Hagan assumed charge of the institution.

Rev. Father Joseph Doyle, the next witness, said he made if a rule to call gerously ill. He had heard but very few complaints. He had been told by patients that they were better treated than at other hospitals. Asked as to the way the treatment at the County Hospital would compare with that at the Sisters' Hospital, witness said it would be hardly fair to compare them, for the reason that the latter was not a charity hospital. Mrs. M. A. Pierson, a former nurse in the institution, testified that she heard the institution, testified that she heard Miss Hamilton and the nurse, Mrs. Red-dick, talking about the management, and heard the latter express herself to the effect that she did not like Dr. Hathe effect that she and the gan's manner of conduct. Witness observed that, after Dr. Hagan assumed served that, after property to eat, which charge, she got enough to eat, which she had not done before. The food un-der Dr. Brainard and Dr. Hagan was about the same. Under Dr. Hagan pa-tients who could not eat from the regu-lar fare had the privilege of having lar fare had the privilege of having special dishes cooked for them, which privilege they did not have under Dr. Brainard.

Cross-examined, witness said she had never told Miss Hamilton that the reason she left the employ of the hospital was that there was not enough food. If she did say anything of the kind to that lady, it was in reference to the food under Dr. Brainard, not Dr. Ha-

G. T. Gibson testified that he first went to the place as a patient, but was at present a nurse there. While a patient he met Mrs. Potts and Mrs. Landt. Witness remembered one occasion when Mr. Clark and another man, supposed to be a notary public called Landt. Witness remembered one occasion when Mr. Clark and another man, supposed to be a notary public, called upon him and asked him to make a statement in regard to a patient named Russell. He refused to give them a statement. After that Mrs. Landt passed him by when she met him without having anything to say. At another time she chanced to be present just as the nurses had finished eating and were leaving the room. She said she never saw such rubbish as was at that table. Once, after Dr. Post left, some of the ladies asked about him, and witness told them he thought Dr. Post was a very nice gentleman. They said they were going to get him back there if they could. Dr. Hagan visited all the wards witness had charge of every night, in company with witness. Cross-examined the witness stated that when he was a patient, the King's Daughters were very kind. They were not especially so to him, for the reason he did not require it. They were very kind to other patients. There were not many complaints among the patients in the ward where he was. The man Libby was examined by the physicians when he first entered. He was a chronic complainer. Mrs. Landt once introduced Mr. Clark to the witness. Mr. Clark asked him to make a statement, which included more than witness had previously stated to Mrs.

Landt about a certain delirious patient. Witness declined to make the statement as asked for by the paper representative. Witness, while at the institution, had eaten at a number of different tables, including the one designated as the "hobo." He got enough to eat at all of them.

J. Eniman had been a patient for four months past. He had had sufficient food and of good quality. He had no complaint to make. Mrs. Landthad asked him if he had sufficient food, and what was good. He had told her he had. She told him her business was to go around and see what complaints there were to be made. She was around there to see that the hospital was run as it ought to be run. She had told him that if he would apply used tea leaves to his eyes during the night, they would feel better. He had not heard her suggest medicines to other patients.

Another patient named John Don-

Ingit, they would feel better. He had not heard her suggest medicines to other patients.

Another patient named John Donnelly, testified that since July he had been an inmate. He was promptly given medical attendance, and had been well used. Mrs. Landt once asked him to go before a notary public and make a complaint against the hospital. She also spoke of being able to make changes in the management so as to get Dr. Hagan out. He asked her if she thought it would be any better to have someone else in his place. She said she thought it would. He asked her why she did not speak to Dr. Hagan about anything which might not be all right, and she said it would do no good.

be all right, and she said it would do no good.
On cross-examination, witness admitted that Mrs. Landt had in effect stated to him that, considering the large amount it cost to run the hospital, it seemed as if the treatment of patients might be better.
Mrs. Grace Battel testified that she was a patient in the hospital from early in September till late in November. She could not have received better treatment. She had no complaint to make regarding the management.
Mrs. C. A. Gordon testified that she was a patient at different times, both under Dr. Brainard and Dr. Hagan. She received excellent treatment under each of them.

under Dr. Brainard and Dr. Hagan. She received excellent treatment under each of them.

Cross-examined, witness positively denied having made any statement to Mrs. Beardsley derogatory to Dr. Hagan's management.

Charles Nelson swore he had been a patient in the institution for a number of months. He had been given everything he wanted. He considered he was well used.

Cross-examined, witness said Mrs.

was well used.

Cross-examined, witness said Mrs.
Landt told him she wanted to get Dr.
Hagan out, and get a younger man in his position. Mrs. Landt once gave him car fare to come down town so he could go to the office of Mr. Clark, which he did. Mr. Clark offered to "help him out" in the way of money if he would make a statement against the management. He declined to do so.
Further hearing was deferred till 9

Mongolians.
The children of the Chinese kindergarten and Sunday-school, which are under control of the Presbyterial board, held a royal Christmas entertainment yesterday afternoon, in the First Pres-byterian Church.

The church, which was beautifully The church, which was beautifully decorated in holly, evergreens, imitation snow and tinsel, was filled to every door with Chinese and American friends of the children, fourteen of whom were a fantastic picture, ranged upon the front of the platform, while back of them the ladies composing the Executive Committee of the society, with a few guests occupied places of honor. with a few guests occupied places of honor. The exercises were announced by Mrs. Minor, president of the board, and conducted by Miss Reynolds, the most efficient teacher.

Above the stage the suggestive motto "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" was suspended, and at the left a huge Christmas tree, literally loaded with gifts, formed a tempting sight. These gifts were all generous contributions, none of them being procured from the treasury fund of the society.

Mrs. Chapin, chairman of the Executive Committee, opened the services with prayer, followed by Mrs. Dimmick, chairman of the Chinese Work Committee, who gave an outline sketch of the school since it was organized four years ago.

The programme by the Chinese children was the feature of the occasion, and included recitations, psalms and songs, in which all in some measure participated, from a little tot of 3, in a relater stall control participated, from a inter tot of 3, in a velvet skull-cap, to a manly lad, aged 10. Their gaudy native dress, their bright eyes, their fine manners and their well-trained voices, made the entertainment one long to be remembered. The memory which even the very small ones exhibited was wonderful and the eager interest with which the little American children in the au dience viewed the little children of ar alien race on the platform was in itself an object lesson. The closing song by the school was in Chinese, and after this Mrs. Chapin read three excellent this Mrs. Chapin read three excellent and very entertaining essays, written by the following: "Idols," Charlie Sing, aged 10; "My Mother's Garden," Anna Sing, aged 9; "Daniel in the Lion's Den," Mansie Sing, aged 8. Mrs. Chapin prefaced their reading by saying that if any American boy or girl from the public schools felt like laughing at these compositions, she would like to the public schools felt like laughing a these compositions, she would like t search them out and take them dow to the Chinese school for instructio two years, and then compel them t write essays in the Chinese language. Then came the grand distribution of gifts, with the interesting by-play of some gifts in silver bestowed by private parties, and the public display of a fine lamp stove for their schoolroom. A collection amounting to $35 was announced, and the Chinese young folks, accompanied by their parents, were conveyed in several carriages to their homes.

WORTH A THOUSAND DOLLARS. Butterfly Which is Probably the Most Valuable Insect in the World.

One naturally thinks of butterflies n connection only with flowers, and in connection only with flowers, and flowers suggest sunshine and warmth. But there is no place on this earth except upon its great seas and oceans where butterfiles cannot be found. Of course the plains of tropical countries abound with them, but some of the most beautiful forms are found in the mountain passes of Darjeeling and Sikkim, in the Himalayas, and on the frigid altitudes of Thibet. Cashmere, Toorkistan and the Pamirs. Lieut. Peary has told that when he planted the United States flag on the ice cap at the furthest point north a moth lit on the pole for a moment. Prices of butterfiles vary in the catalogues of professional dealers from 15 cents to $500. According to a writer in the New York Herseld from with the heads. on the pole for a moment. Prices of butterflies vary in the catalogues of professional dealers from 15 cents to $500. According to a writer in the New York Herald, from which these facts about butterflies are gleaned, "fine types," beautiful and rare "varieties," and wonderful "uniques" are practically priceless. For example, one of the gems of the collection of Mr. Neumoegen of New York is his wonderful papilio neumoegen. This insect, the only one of its kind ever captured, was taken on the Island of Sumbawa, southeast of Java. Received in a shipment from his collector at that place, Mr. Neumoegen at once concluded that it was new to science. He sent it to Europe, risking its loss, and experts there decided that he was right. It is of a wondrful metallic green. Special expeditions have been sent to the locality several times since in the hope of finding another, but this one still remains unique. If it were sold at auction in London it would bring $1000 at least.

That fact is, that this is really a genuine bargain sale, that it lasts but one day, and that, under no circumstances, will it be renewed. It is simply an unusual opportunity for you to make some money by tunity for you to make some money saving some. We do not claim that these sugar-bowls

Now, we find we have too many sugar-bowls, we find we have too many sugar-bowls, and some of them must go. They must make room for other varieties of stock. There is but one way to make them go quick. That is by lowering the price to bottom figures, and that's where you reap the benefit. We do not offer them below cost. the Treasurer on account of the delinquent tax collections. Any other use of it was a breach of his duty, and likewise a breach of the bond. If it had been paid generally to the Treasurer, a question might arise as to what application the law would make of the payment, whether to the debt of the previous term as the oldest obligation, or on account of the delinquent taxes as the account to which it ought in right and equity to be applied. But there is no such question here. The money was paid in pursuance of a specific demand for the particular debt, and was received and applied in settlement of that debt. There is no evidence that the Auditor or Treasurer had any knowledge is to what money he was paying on this demand, and it must be presumed that they didn't have any knowledge that it was the money received from delinquent taxes. Consequently, they cannot be charged with notice of any trust in relation to the money used to pay the debt. It was a conversion of the money by Hammond to his own use, and had the effect to release the sureties on the bond given for the previous term, and the same act created a liability on the bond for the second term.

"A supplemental answer has been filed, alleging that one of the defendants, Ranney, has died since the action was begun, and that no claim for debt sued on has ever been presented to the administrator of his estate, and that recourse to the estate is now lost by lapse of time. As Ranney was not a necessary party to the action, the bond being joint and several in form, it is difficult to see how this fact can be a defense. In the case of People vs. Jenkins, 17 Cal., 500, it was held that the administrator of the principal in the bond was not a necessary party, and that the failure of the people to pursue its legal remedies against the principal does not discharge the sureties on the bond. The case is in point on this question, and is adverse to the defendants. '"I conclude that judgment should be rendered for the plantiff against the Crops and Markets. Crops and Markets.

The soaking rain which fell during he early part of the week was an acceptable Christmas present for the armers of Southern California. Plowing will commence in earnest, as the soil has been put in good condition for working, and the indications are for a heavy planting of cereals. Some farmers had dry plowing considerably discovered and graphs in which when the raises dyanced, and grain in when the rains came, which will soon start the grain to germinate. The early-sown grain has been greatly benefited by the rains, is previous to them the soll was be-

The chief interest now centers in the orange market. Only a few carloads fruit fairly turns color. That this have yet been sent East, that market well supplied with Florida fruit. Reports from Florida state that the dranges there are swelling to a large size, on account of warm weather fol-lowed by rains. Many of the oranges will be 80 and even 64 sizes, while very few will run smaller than 150. These large oranges will come into direct mpetition with our naves, and make This will also make the Florida crop larger than was exgood market. State are to the effect that there will about three million boxes or 10,000 oads of fruit on hand by the 1st of January. When it is remembered that commenced in Florida about expected the market would be pretty vell cleared out by New Year's, it will the California growers will have to contend with.

can still get all the oranges they want: in fact, more than they need. Most of the shipments now being made are to Pacific Coast points. Here the market is still being cut—the Riverside Ex-change having put the price down to $1.75, f.o.b., and $1.15 to $1.25 for seedthe commission men have fol-suit, and quote the same price. The rain has also interfered to a considerable extent with shipments. It has been charged that the commission men have been trying to un-dermine the recently-formed Orangegrowers' Association. This is denied by the commission men, one of whom said this week: "There has not been pers or commission men to effect this purpose, and they have watched the to retard its progress. This being the case, there is perhaps more to fear from their apathy in the matter than there would have been from open hostility.

"It must be conceded that the com mission men are in a position to bet-ter understand the difficulties to be overcome in marketing the orange crop than the growers, who have heretofore largely depended upon them. Per aps the commission men, through their knowledge and experience can see far-ther into the future results from the methods proposed by the present growselves can who organized it, and they are relying upon their belief that unaster will overtake association and its members, to create reaction in their favor. If this is the case, they cannot be censured for re-maining silent, for to have spoken and endeavored to expose any weakness in the association would only have sub-jected them to bitter abuse or the charge of self-interest.

There are still some sections which have not yet joined the organization of orange-growers, notably Redlands. The people of that section say that they never have any difficulty in selling their fruit at top prices, and, conse-quently, do not see what use they have for an organization, besides which, they do not care to place their fruit on the same level with that from Riverside, which they claim is more liable to frost, and does not ship so well.
Outside of oranges, there has been some business in shipping vegetables to the East, where there is at present a good market for cauliflower, celery and cabbage at fair prices. The recent rain will be of much assistance to this crop. It appears that artificial irrigation is not of so much use to vegetables season of the year as a natural rainfall. The latter washes the leaves of the plants clean, and rids them of many bugs. Unfortunately, most of these vegetables are still raised by Chinamen, although white men are beginning to make a move in that direc-tion. Mention has already been made in these columns of the organization of growers at Fullerton, which shipped about seventy-five carloads of cabbages last season. The same organization is this year calling for bids for 150 car-loads, the experience with last year's crop having been very favorable. This an example which might be emulated by American farmers in other parts of Southern California.

effect upon the reputation of California fruit in the market, is very evident from correspondence which is from time to time received from the highest authentic sources, bearing upon this subject. The following are examples of protests against forcing the market before fruit is thoroughly ripened, sweet are reputable:

"We will be in market for California fruit as soon as the fruit is ripe enough to give satisfaction. We have found it poor policy to place green oranges on the market."

"At present we are not ready to order any oranges, for the holidays, as for the past few years the first oranges from your section did not give satisfaction, and we do not intend to order until the fruit is thoroughly ripe."

"If there is any attempt made to force green fruit, which has been done in years past, jt will only result in disaster and a general demoralization of the trade." If orange-growers could realize that the shipment of too green stock every year destroyed our market, they would not be so ready to ship it. People who buy oranges and then find them sour do not think of buying more for quite a while, and the result is that they accumulate and prices break. For the general good we would suggest that you use every end-avor to have nothing but ripe fruit shipped."

"We do not feel like placing an Life gause it is good—not a bad imply because it is good—not a bad imply because it is good—not a bad imply because it is good—not a bad intensit of interest to inquire whether there may in the coson, surely, but it is sometimes of interest to inquire whether there may in the coson, surely, but it is sometimes of interest to inquire whether there may in the coson, surely, but it is sometimes of interest to inquire whether there may in the coson, surely, but it is sometimes of interest to inquire whether there may in the considered the "queen of firtist."

To begin with, the epidermis, or outer for fruit, is thickly studded with rounded cells, filled with a frazing of the rind, is thickly studded with rounded cells, filled wi the general good we would suggest that you use every endeavor to have nothing but ripe fruit shipped."
"We do not feel like placing an order with you for California oranges until after they have obtained a good macist and the confectioner, will have in our home-grown "oil of orange," certainly a cleaner and possibly a cheaper and altogether more satisfactory product as well.

To the chemist oil of orange is one of a natural family of hydrocarbons belonging to what is termed the aromatic series. This includes several related groups among which are the so-called terpenes, of which oil of turpentine is a typical example. This group is represented by the general chemical formula C 10 to H 16; which means that ten parts of carbon are always found combined with sixteen parts of hydrogen; or, remembering that the atomic weight of carbon is 12, and that of hydrogen i, our short hand way of writing it indicates that 10x12 equals 120 parts or (say ounces to make it if possible more simple) of carbon (charcoal) is always combined with exactly 16x1, or sixteen ounces of hydrogen. All this group, which is a very extensive one, gives the same chemical analysis, and yet the taste, odor, optical and other physical properties are vastly different. It is certainly a most singular fact that nature can take exactly 129 ounces of carbon and 16 ounces of hydrogen and put them together in such varying products as oil of turpentine, orange, lemon, rose, caraway, pepper, anise, nutmes, thyme, lavender, etc. It all depends, no doubt, upon the different ways in which the ultimate atoms are grouped, and is simply an instance among thousands of what chemists call "isormerism."

As I have said, oil of turpentine seems to be in a sense typical of this whole group of essential oils, and many of them, among which is oil of orange, tend to revert or go back to this probably less complex primitive type, as every drugglist who is compelled to carry much "old stock" finds to his cost. Like most of the oils derived from the citrus family, oil of orange can be much "old stock" linds to his cost. Like most of the oils derived from the citrus family, oil of orange can be split into a number of isomeric bodies, some of which contain the odoriferous principle in a concentrated form. It is a curious fact, too, that the odor does not seem to below the contains the odoriferom to the contains the contains some of which contain the odoriferous principle in a concentrated form. It is a curious fact, too, that the odor does not seem to belong to the oil itself, but is only developed at the moment when it is oxidized and destroyed. In an atmosphere of pure nitrogen oil of orange has very little more odor than olive oil. Most fragrant essential oils share in this singular chemical property. At the same time that the fragrance is developed ozone is produced, the most powerful germicide known, so that the universal liking of the world for perfumes has probably its ultimate reason for existence in important sanitary laws.

As a medicine the orange holds no mean rank. It is rich in citrus acid, deliciously flavored, and compounded with exactly the proportions of sugar to render it most grateful to the palate. In addition to its recognized therapeutic value as a refrigerant and entisecorbutic it possesses other properites even more important. In certain low types of fever nothing is more relished or can be taken with greater safety by the patient. It is food and medicine most defuly combined. When the almost moribund stomach seems to resent as an insult the approach of every other form of nourismment or drink or healing potion, it will often tolerate and gratefully accept this wonderfully compounded prescription from Nature's own pharmacy. Fruit-grower an editorial on the olive, which states that a large-sized berry In is very much the best for pickling, and tic has explained that for oil he would not have the trees irrigated.

Wishing to compare the size and yield of fruit from irrigated and non-irrigated trees. I recently visited numerous orchards in this section, and I beg leave to give you an account of the object lessons, as they appeared to me.

There is an orchard near here five years old, growing in a sandy wash, a specially grown of the object lessons. The proposed is a second to the orange from a hygenic point of view. It is found a hygenic point of view. It is found a hygenic point of view.

There is an orchard near here five years old, growing in a sandy wash, which has borne two crops; the trees are of remarkable size and vigor though never irrigated. They have not been cultivated since last June. It is seventy feet to water.

Another orchard, of the same age, on sandy loam bore fruit this year for the second time; it was bought by a pickling firm at 6 cents per pound, the highest price paid this eason for olives. The orchard has never been irrigated, it was cultivated once this season. The well on the place is about 100 feet deep.

An orchard, of a little more than four acres, about six years old on land somewhat heavy, produced last year for four acres, about six years old on land somewhat heavy, produced last year for four acres, about six per pound, the highest price paid last year in this market. The owner was offered 6 cents per pound for this year's crop, but declined the offer, preferring to pickle it himself. The trees were cultivated once this season; irrigation is not practiced. Wells in the neighborhood are over 100 feet deep. The trees in this orchard are very large for their age.

It is, however, in the protein that by far the highest nutritive value is found. All the nitrogenous compounds found and formed in the blood, muscles, tendons, nerves, brain and other tissues of the human body, come directly from the transformation of this most important food product, the albumenoids.

The flesh-forming ingredients, singular to say, are found in more liberal proportions in the orange than any other known fruit. The carbo-hydrates are also well represented, as the vari-proportions in the orange than any other known fruit. The carbo-hydrates are also well represented, as the various forms of sugar found in well-ripened specimens give it an equally high rank in that regard. According to the latest European investigations, oranges stand first among fruits in the albumenoids present (1.73 per cent.) prunes second (78 per cent.), peaches third, bananas fourth, while apples and pears stand nearly the lowest on the list. Dr. Hilgard of California, who has made an exhaustive study of the orange as grown there, finds a slightly diminished percentage of albumenoids, but, while positive knowledge on this point is wanting, I am quite confident that the Florida grown orange is fully equal if not superior to the European product, both in the percentage of its albumenoids and carbo-hydrates.

We are then safe, I think, in assuming that Florida oranges have more value simply as food than any other known fruit. Some day, no doubt, these facts will be generally recognized. The orange will then be looked upon as something more than a luxury, and this "queen of fruits" will take its true place, not merely as a most tempting and appetizing morsel for the palate, but as one of the mest important food products of the semi-tropical Find a Way.

Pickling Olives.

Pickling Olives.

(Pacific Rural Press.) Mr. Delong's (Pacific Rural Press.) Mr. Delong's valuable article on pickling olives, in your issue of Oct. 7, reminds me that there is one question concerning this industry which should be fully discussed. I refer to the question whether or not the lye process is the best. It is because that process seems to be adopted, almost as a matter of course, by most people who are going into the pickling of California olives in market quantities, and because I believe its use to be fatal to the best results, that I think it timely, and perhaps important, to call attention to its shortcomings.

It has become a commonplace with California fruit-growers, that the success of their business in future will depend on their ability to satisfy an increasing critical demand for the best products, and the olive is perhaps specially subject to delicate—discrimination as to flavor on the part of consumers, whose perception of difference of quality will grow with their growing taste for the olive.

I have really but one objection to offer against the use of lye. I have heard another, but I am pot sure it is well-founded. It has been suggested that the lye-cured olive will not keep firm so long as that cured without lye. But I am inclined to think that if all other conditions are well filled, it can be made to keep indefinitely in good condition. My objection thus refers only to the eating qualities of the product, and is based chiefly on my own experience as a consumer, and on that of my acquaintances.

The object of the lye treatment is, of course, simply to remove the bitterness. It does this promptly and thoroughly; but it does more. It removes at the same time the larger part of the olive flavor. If the process is perfectly performed, so as, to leave no trace of soapy flavor, arising from the combination of the lye with the oil of the olive, the resulting product is an innocent article to which the novice could not positively object unless on the ground of time wasted in its consumption. To one accustomed to eat olives so prepared as to reta valuable article on pickling olives, in your issue of Oct. 7, reminds me that could not positively object unless on the ground of time wasted in its consumption. To one accustomed to eat olives so prepared as to retain the chief part of the peculiar racy flavor, without the bitterness, the lye product is a disappointment. The form, the semblance, perhaps the texture is there, but the life is gone.

The process of extracting the bitter without lye is absolutely simple. It consists in keeping the olive in fresh water, which is changed every day or two, until the bitter is gone. The objection to it is the length of the operation, as it takes two or three months with the hard water of our mountains; but, when the tanks or barrels are conveniently arranged for running water in and out of them, as of course they should be in any establishment making a business of olive-pickling, the labor is very light.

When the bitter is extracted by this process, there remains an olive full of sext which when properly nickled.

When the bitter is extracted by this process, there remains an olive full of zest, which, when properly pickled in brine, improves continually for many months, constantly strengthing its claim to be the only olive worth a man's while to eat.

There is no trouble about keeping them firm, if the brine is strong. Sometime before using, the excessive brine may be removed by substituting fresh water for the brine. The olives that we have just now on our table were picked two years ago, and are better how than ever before. They were ripe when picked, and the pickling and keeping has been done in the roughest and easiest way without great pains of any sort.

and easiest way without great pains of any sort.

I think that anyone who is satisfied with the lye-pickled olive has not really learned to know and like the olive flavor, and it is doubtful whether any great market sucess can be built on an article, which, in the process of its preparation, has parted with so large a share of its virtue. There is not enough left in it for any strong liking to grow on.

a share of its virtue. There is not enough left in it for any strong liking to grow on.

It probable that methods may be found to shorten the process without the use of lye. It can be done by stabbing each olive with a small knife, but that is too much work. Soft water will do the work more quickly than hard, and perhaps alkali enough to soften the water might be used without robbing the olive of its flavor. Our students of organic chemistry might help us in this matter. A curlous thing that I have noted in regard to the bitter principle of the olive, is that drying on the barn floor for a few weeks will remove the bitter. I do not know whether this is of any significance as to its nature. But, without any improvement in the water process, it is clear to me that its results make it the better process to use, and I appe it may be followed by some of the people who are taking hold of this new industry, so that with its beginning may begin the market demonstration that the California ripe olive, prepared as it should be, is entitled by its high and delicate flavor, as well as by its wholesomeness, to an esteemed place on the table.

a remarkable dairy test conducted in Waukesha county, Wis., by Prof. W. A. The prize for the best cow Jerseys. "This cow," says Prof. Henry, cow 253 days in milk to give in one day 44 pounds of milk, carrying over be breed." Witte's cow's record scored the next best cow, and over double that of the poorest eow. The of other solids than fat were 3.86 the per cent, of butter fat was 5.2.

Ensilage for Cows.

In a lecture before the Ohio Farmers' Institute Prof. Samuel Johnson said: "A shorthorn cow (age seven years, four months with calf) was fed 78 pounds ensilage daily, receiving in addition only 3½ pounds of meal. She weighed over 1600 pounds. This ration kept her in thriving breeding condition and seemed adapted to her wants. While 78 pounds of ensilage may seem like an excessive daily ration. I should add that this sample contained no grain. The amount fed must depend upon the percentage of grain, and the stage of maturity it has reached when placed in the silo. I have referred to these figures to show that corn ensilage of good quality may constitute a large portion at least of the food of young growing cattle, and especially of dry breeding cows, and prove satisfactory. pounds ensilage daily, receiving in ad-

"At the same time I should prefer to "At the same time I should prefer to have the ration contain some dry forage, and this is in the line of utilizing to the best advantage all the roughage of the farm, the straw and cornstalks, in the combined ration. The ensilage is appetizing. It helps the animal to assimilate better the dried fodder in its ration. It may form the larger part of the food for our cattle, and give more excellent returns in growth, milk or beef. It is economical. It means the growing of an equivalent to six or eight tons of hay to the acre. Our experience leads us to estimate two and one-half tons of good corn ensilage in combined ration as equal in feeding value to one ton of hay.

About two weeks hence, on January Los Angeles County Poultry Association will be held. Every effort has been made by the managers to make this the most successful exhibition of the kind that has ever been held in Southern California. As we have already mentioned, there will be a radical departure from the usual formal style of arranging these poultry shows. More attention will be given to the picturesque features of the exhibit, which have hitherto been to a great extent neglected. In addition to the fowls there will be a large variety of singing birds and pet stock. Entries in all departments will positively close Saturday, January 13. Arrangements should be made with the secretary, John C. Stedman, No. 117 East Second street.

An Indiana correspondent of an Eastern exchange writes thus of his experi-ence in feeding eight two-year-old steers during last summer and fall. April 7 the eight weighed 5100 pounds, or nearly 640 pounds each. November 16 they weighed 9700 pounds, a gain of 575 pounds in 223 days. Corn was fed for one month in spring. After that up to September 1 they had grass only. Since September 1 they were fed corn and not allowed to go hungry. This is a profitable return for comparatively and yet least-noticed advance is the better understanding that now prevalls among progressive farmers about the feeding of domestic animals. It is true that a large part of the food that used to be given to stock was either wasted or was positively injurious. It is yet, for that matter, among the large class who give little thought to their business and despise the teaching of newspapers and experimental stations. To alternately starve and stuff animals used to be considered inevitable. It was the condition of nature, and it was argued that wild animals in a state of nature usually maintained good health. Those who argued for better feeding than nature's method were told that what was gained in fleshmaking was likely to be offset by weaker constitution, and often by an impairment of the digestive functions.

That this was sometimes the fact is true. The science of feeding has been of comparatively recent growth, and to feed in the best manner animals whose digestion has already been injured requires more skill than most feeders possessed. We are at last learning that for the very best feeding animals must be guarded against injudicious food from birth, and even earlier than this. It is possible certainly to stunt pigs before birth, and it is often done when breeding cows are fed too much corn. They are apt in such case to farrow pigs whose digestion seems to be impaired even from birth. Gençrally, however, young animals have good appetites, and are able to digest what nature has provided for them. The first milk they get from their dams is always laxative, and the weakness of very young animals insures them against getting more at first than is good for them. In fact, for a number of days after birth, suckling their dams provides the kind and amount of food that is best for growth and future well-being of the young animal. It is when the natural supply becomes insufficient that the injury to digestion begins. Either the young animal is left with too little, or it is apt to be greatly soverfed or fed with what i was that good feeding required as nearly as possible a continuation of the feeding which young animals received from their dams, the amount fed being gradually increased as the animal became stronger. The digestive organs, like all others in the body, are strengthened by use and weakened or injured by abuse. What is called dyspepsia almost always results from bad feeding, alternately starving and pampering, or the giving of food that is difficult of digestion. Sometimes the trouble with digestion is that the food is not properly balanced. The natural appetite calls for the kind of food that the system requires. If this is not furnished any substitute for it will be eaten less heartily, will not receive its due proportion of saliva, and will not digest

The analysis of food showing its different constituents has only made more plain the reasons for the success of some old-fashioned feeders and the failure of others. By showing what rations for growth, for fattening and for milk require it has made it possible for all to be reasonably successful. There is far less feeding of corn to young or breeding animals than used to be common. When corn is fed now it is in combination with less concentrated forms of food and those having more of the flesh, muscle and bone-forming material than has corn. There is far more use of fine wheat middlings as a corrective of the excessive carboneceous cornmeal, and also as an aid to better digestion, than many farmers imagine. If they are fattening animals, they often suppose that the more concentrated fattening food they can get eaten, the better will be the result. But skilful feeders know better. It is not what is eaten but what is digested and assimilated that benefits the fattening animal. well.

The analysis of food showing its different constituents has only made that they can be so easily grown. They are sown, in the West especially, on rain-plowed land or after corn without any spring plowing. If the season is favorable this easily produces a good crop. But when we consider what the oats take from the soil, it is found that this easily-grown crop is very nearly the most expensive that the farmer can sow. Oat roots fill the soil much more thoroughly than does any other spring grain, not excepting wheat. The oat leaf is not broad, and if it were the plant is not one of the kind to extract from the air the nitrogenous lements with which the grain is filled.

Why We Plow.

To bury a surface growth of sod under the soil, where, by its decay, it will add its elements of fertility to the general stock of plant-food already in the soil. (2.) To kill weeds, thereby obtaining a clear surface, so that the crops may enjoy undisputed and sole possession of the soil. (3.) To thoroughly pulverize the soil, so as to make a perfect seed-bed for the young and growing plant. (4.) To break the crust after each rain, so that the land shall imbibe its full share of heat, air and moisture. In preparing the land for the reception of the seed, it is highly important that the husbandman know just exactly how to plow, but after the ground is all prepared and the crops are planted, it becomes doubly necessary to know not only how to plow and when to plow, but also why it is necessary to plow at all, and what we expect to accomplish by it. In whatever manner the ground may have been prepared for the crop, whether by plowing deep or shallow, surface cultivation, oft repeated, should be the order of the day for any and all crops that have to be cultivated by plowing and boeing. This "surface cultivation" not only kills all grass and weeds, but, breaking the crust after each rain, opens up the soil to the air, allowing it to enter, to be absorbed by the soil, and to pass out from the soil freely. This loose surface soil is, in short, the lungs that enable both the soil and roots of plants to breathe. This "breathing process" is not only of prime necessity to the healthfulness of the growing plant, but it is also essential to that important process termed "nitrification," by which organic nitrogen in the soil is changed into nitrates, the form in which nitrogen is appropriated by plants almost exclusively. Nitrification requires a pretty high temperature, but in soils that contain liberal quantities of humus, and are stirred frequently with the plow, cultivator or harrow, will go on rapidly in such weather as we have after June 1. small. A number of these small spaces joined together make little tubes, called "capfilary tubes," and in these water will rise from below. If the soil has not been disturbed after a rain, these tubes come to the surface, evaporates and escapes, consequently is lost, as far as that individual crop is concerned. When the soil has been plowed, the spaces or tubes are made larger, and water will not rise in large tubes. Hence it comes up as far as the small tubes are undisturbed, and stops there, and the loose soil above prevents its rapid evaporation. In this way, and by these means, the natural pores of the earth are closed; the loose diff serves as a "mulch," and the soil moisture is conserved in time of drought and retained in the soil (exactly where it is needed) from one rain to the next. in the soil (exactly where it is needed) from one rain to the next. This mulch not only prevents the escape of soil moisture, but it also tends to check the intense heat of the sun in its downward progress to the roots of plants. Both of these are very important matters during spells of long-continued het, dry weather throughout the whole of the United States, but doubly important throughout the sem-arid regions of the Southwest and West, in this connection we cannot do better than to ampend the observations of Prof. W. H. King of Wisconsin, on "Rain and Soil Stirring." They are interesting, instructive, pertinent and to the point. He says:

"I found, during my study of soil moisture when taking samples of seit just before a rain, and again immediately after, in the same locality, that on geveral occasions the soil at some distance below the surface was drier after than before the rain. I found, also, on two different occasions, by determining the amount of water in an area of field soil down to the depth of four feet, and then adding with a sprinkler a known quantity of water to the surface, that after the lapse of about (wenty-four hours the lowes three feet contained less water than before the sprinkling occurred, while the upper foot had gained in water more than had been able yet to determine whether this principle applies to all soils, but there is a condition of moisture for clayey soils underlaid in which-a certain amount to added to the surface, so that in these cases the surface foot may receive not simply the rains which fall upon them, but and additional quantity brought up from below, in consequence of the rain having faften.

"These facts make it evident that there may be times when to leave a plece of ground unstirred two or three days after a shower, may result in leaving the upper four or five feet of soil in a drier condition than if it had not rained at all, because not only will the rain itself have been evaporated from the surface, but in addition, some portion of the deep-soil water, which the rain was the occasion of bringing up from below. Temperance Temple Hall was densely filled last night, with a throng eager to witness the saving power of God, as made manifest through the instrumenof the "praying evangelist, F. Warnon. It had been requested that all desiring prayers and the imposition of hands should make application in writnames should make application in writing previous to the service, stating name, address, religious standing and church connection, and nature of discase. This application was in order to accelerate matters, and to preserve it for comparison with conditions pre-sented afterward. The number of those desiring divine healing was sufficient to entirely fill three front pews and veral chairs, which were or them.

The subject of the discourse

The subject of the discourse was God's provision for healing men today, through His power and the Holy Spirit. It was plain, practical and well illustrated. God has said to us to do certain thiggs, and we should do them without questioning why they are to be done, or how they are done. In the healing of the sick He has made certain promises, and He has said that in His name hands shall be laid upon the sick, and they shall recover. But He does not promise in any case that there shall be perfect, instantaneous and lasting healing. A case was then cited of instantaneous, perfect and lasting recovery of a woman who was apparently upon her deathbed, suffering from peritonitis, of a woman whom 600 physicians had visited, and upon whom thousands of dollars had been spent in vain. When prayers were offered in her behalf, it seemed that they "ascended straight to heaven and knocked on the gates of pearl" and were admitted. She straightway arose from her bed, and those who one, gave way; and she was at once clothed and walked about the room, shaking hands with those present. So God comes down to our weakness sometimes, and gives us tangible, material proofs of His benevolence.

God comes down to our weakness some-times, and gives us tangible, material proofs of His benevolence.

The request was made that those who had been present the previous day and who had experienced benefit should go forward to the platform, for renewed prayers and imposition of hands. The number responding was small.

A man totally blind in one eye, and partially blind in the other, was enable to recognize Mr. Warnon's face at a distance of two and one-half feet, instead of one foot, as on the previous day. This completed the number of those presenting themselves for a second imposition, from the fifteen or sixteen of Thursday.

The new cases were next taken individually. Some of these were pronounced very marked and aggravated.

assumes that God has endowed him with the power to cure disease in its manifold forms by prayer and the laying on of hands is in, our midst. And I submit that to Los Angeles and the world at large the subject is incomparably more important than is any one of the momentous political questions now agitating the public mind. Can the existence of God and his miraculous interference in human affairs be reduced to scientific demonstration? If so the great question of the ages will be forever settled. If so enormous burdens will at once be lifted from human shoulders. If so light and gladness will break upon many a pathway now dark and forbidding. The matter is so important as amply to justify—even to necessitate— the closest examination. Let a committee be appointed, to be composed of three of the best doctors, three of the ablest ministers and four of the most intelligent and reputable business men of the city, whose duty it shall, be to examine this subject in all of its phases and report. If they find that cures are actually performed, let them say so; if not, let them say so. By all means let us have the facts, that we may govern ourselves accordingly, as, proved, we are in direct contact with infinite power which is available in all human emergencies; not proved, multitudes are sadly deceived. human emergencies; not proved, multi-tudes are sadly deceived. EVANGELIST CAIRNS.

His Closing Services at the First Baptist The thirteen days revival season at the First Baptist Church, under the leadership of George Robert Cairns, came to an end last evening. A very large audience was present, completely filling the auditorium, among whom were seen Rev. Charles Winbigler of Riverside: Rev. J. H. Storms, Santa Paula; Rev. George E. Dye, East Los Angeles: Rev. W. W. Tinker, Monrovia; Rev. A. C. Smither, this city. The service opened with singing "Abundantly Able to Save," Mr. Calira singing the solo parts. The opening prayer was made by Rev. Dr. Read, in which he prayed especially for the members and pastors of churches in Los Angeles, who condone and wink at, and even participate in, "the sins of society." The male quartette added greatly to the solemn interest of the occasion. first chapter of Proverbs furnished the evening scriptural lesson. In giving notice of next Sunday evening services, the pastor called special attention to the fact that the ordinance of baptism will then be administered to several persons, the first fruits of these meet persons, the first fruits of these meetings. Already a large number have professed religion.

Before beginning his sermon, Mr. Cairns specially thanked all who had helped in sustaining his meetings, particularly referring to the newspapers of this city, for their material assistance.

Similar remarks were made by the venture of the serious contents of the serious Similar remarks were made by the ven-er ble pastor, Dr. Read. As before an-nounced, the evangelist's topic of the nounced, the evangelist's topic of the evening was a repetition, by special request, of last Sunday's sermon, "Th Sins of Modern Society," being founded upon Proverbs 1,17. "Surely in vain the net is set in the sight of any hird." In beginning the sermon Mr. Cairns claimed it was his duty, as a preacher of gospel truth, to explain the frivoit-ties and errors of church members, and the sins of those who set the pace in society. Whatever a Christian does and says, it is the standard for others to follow, and by which they are judged Warning his hearers that he intended to speak plainly, the preacher boldly lifted the cover from the inner lives of so-called leaders in social life, and Christian churches, and in language as plain as it was bold, showed the hypocrisy, and fashionable sinfulness, of those who ought to be living examples of purity and holy usefulness. The game of cards was the first error that was particularly mentioned by Mr. Cairns, and from his standpoint it was one of the most seductive and danger-

The modern theater was next referred to, and was held up as a place of amusement that was demoralizing, and not elevating or calculated to in any way improve the morals of the com-munity. Mary Anderson was quoted as having written, through the Times, to Henry Irving, and saying, "the modern theater is the most demoralizing influence of the present day," She afterward repeated the same words to Mr. Cairns personally. The social dance was the third great sin that was referred to as demoralizing a tender yet manly plea for better men and women, as representatives of the churches, and leaders in society, that beautiful fabric that binds in one attractive whole the homes of the land we love so well.

The after meeting caused nearly all the congregation to remain to get a special personal biessing from the closing moments of these interesting meetings. The services closed with the beautiful benediction in song, "God Be With You, Till We Meet Again." Mr. Cairns goes at once to Oakland, where he holds services with the First which had been afflicted for eight years with spinal curvature, from a fall, was claimed to be perceptibly straightened.

An elderly man who has suffered three strokes of apoplexy was made by the "gift of healing" to mount the platform without aids, and he said that the congestion in his head was removed, and it felt cool.

Another, a woman in consumption, lost all her pain; and a woman unable for more than a year to raise her arms or move her wrists, from blood-poisoning, extended her arms above her head, and her wrists became flexible.

These, and a great number of other cases, fully as remarkable, occupied the evening until a late hour.

The most notable instance of relief however, was that of an aged, white-haired man, a sufferer from locomotor ataxia—a disease which the evangelist explained to be the disintegrating of the membrane, or gray matter enveloping the nerves. From a almost helpless invalid, who was conducted to Rev. Mr. Warnion only by sliding his feet upon the floor, and who could not raise himself from a chair, but by pulling himself up, and whose speech was thick and indistinct, the audience had the satisfaction of seeing him swing his arms, place one foot and then the other upon a chair at considerable elevation, run to and fro, mount the platform and leap from the same with nearly the agility of a boy, and talk gilbly and intelligently.

This was sufficient to arouse the beholders to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and "glorys" and "amens" were fervent and frequent.

Facts About the Wagner Insolvency.

Serious Charges Against the Bankrupt Jeweler-His Career in Other Cities-Some Excellent Detective Work.

A number of unpublished facts in onnection with the Wagner insolvency case, a decision in which was rendered on Thursday by Judge Mc-Kinley, came to light yesterday, re-vealing a state of affairs which in very mild terms may be denominated as "crooked." The latest developments also show up M. Wagenr in avery un-enviable light, and reveal his former operations, which appear to have been anything but free from reproach.

Nearly everyone who was in the city at the time, remembers the sensational story of the loss by Wagner, while out riding with a friend, of several thou-sand dollars worth of diamonds. A large reward was offered, and finally the diamonds were found by a Chinese vegetable gardner in the western part of the city. At least, it was said that the Chinaman found diamonds, but since it has ben authoritatively stated that the packet picked up contained merely glass, and that the ruse of an-nouncing that stones had been lost was resorted to merely in order that the real diamonds in stock might be the real diamonds in stock might be secreted.

Two years ago Wagner opened up his establishment on Spring street in great style, and on a magnificent scale. He kept adding to the stock constantly until about $80,000 worth of goods were in the cases in the store. To his numerous creditors, to allay their apprehensions that he was loading himself too heavily he stated that he had but a $15,000 debt against him, and upon this representation he was granted an extension of time, both by San Francisco and New York wholesalers. Just before this extension expired, an attachment was levied on the stock. When an inventory was taken, the goods were found to have decreased in bulk from the value of $80,000 to about $15,000 or $20,000. Believing that the assignment made by Wagner was not a square one, a committee from the San, Francisco Board of Trade came down to investigate. In the course of the administration of the down to investigate. In the course of the hearing in court Wagner practically admitted having hidden some of the stock, but refused to tell where. At he assignee's sale Henry Susskind bought the entire lot of jewelry for bout $1000. He then held an auction sale and in the meantime Wagner re mained in the store.

Soon after Susskind took possession it was noticed that the stock began to Soon after Susskind took possession it was noticed that the stock began to increase in some mysterious manner, although no purchases were made from the wholesalers or outside merchants.

The creditors were on the lookout constantly, and on the day when the San Francisco committee saw displayed in the show windows of the store a number of watch cases and other articles which they recognized as having been sold to Wagner previous to the levying of the attachment, they resolved to act. Without wasting any time the place was reattached, and upon a second inventory being taken, stock to the value of $40,000 was unearthed, exclusive of the value of that sold at the auction sale. Susskind commenced suit at once against the Sheriff, who, as assignee, sold him the goods, and in this action judgment has been given in favor of the creditors and assignee, the former being now able to recover nearly dollar for dollar on the merchandise.

The firm of Graff & Latham, the well-known attorneys, have been largely instrumental in bringing the matter to such a just and equitable close, having as their associates the Stillwell & Lawson Detective Agency.

Wagner was a former resident of Shreveport, La., and his departure from that place is said to have been very hurried in order that process of law might be evaded. He at present has a wife from whom, it is alleged, he has never been divorced, and five children living at that place. In Shreveport he was known as C. J. Warner and not Wagner. After leaving his

From there he sent word for the owners to "come and get the rig," as he was going to Monrovia, and would not return before the following Friday. It has since developed that all of his tools are also gone, which fact, with others, would indicate that he has no intention of returning. Regarding his suspicious absence the Ojai says: "Knoeller has spent most of his time and money gambling. Ever since he has been in Nordhoff. Besides getting heavily in debt to the people of the town, dissipation has made him nervous and irritable, and, it is asserted, his irritabliity has found vent in abusing his young wife, who, because of his ill-treatment, is now in bad physical condition. There is much indignation in Nordhoff against Knoeller, and, if he returns here, he will have to give the citizens a guarantee of good behavior in the future." It is stated that his wife and infant child are left destitute among strangers, and that a purse will probably be made up to send them to his mother at Los Angeles, as soon as she is able to travel.

Such notes shall be issued to any solvent bank having a paid-up capital of over $25,000 on the deposit of certain bonds required by the act. The bonds may be either United States or those of a State, county, parish or city, with a population of 5000, when the bonds have been at par for two years and all interest paid up. Circulating notes are exempted from all taxation. Federal or local banks depositing other than, national, bonds may receive 90 per cent, in notes. The United States assumes all responsibility for the redemption of notes.

The banks must guarantee the payment of the bonds deposited, and all assets of the banks are liable therefor. On notes issued to the amount of one-half the capital stock, the bank must pay a tax of 1 per cent, per annum, on an additional 25 per cent, a 2 per cent, tax is imposed, and on the remaining 25 per cent, a 4 per cent, tax will be required.

Ample provision is made for retiring the redundant currency, and for cancellation. The faith and credit of the United States is pledged to redemption in coin on demand of national currency notes, and a reservestund in coin is provided equal to 20 per cent. of the outstanding notes.

Alexander Sullivan and Judge Grinnell as Probable Witnesses.
CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(By the Associated Press.) The Coughlin case was continued today, with the cross-examination of Mrs. Jonas Carlson, whose husband owned the cottage in which Dr. Cronin was murdered. Nothing of special interest was elicited.

It was rimored today that Alexander Sullivan will go on the stand as a witness for the defense, and Judge Grinnell is mentioped as a possible witness for the prosecution. Cronin's friends produced a cablegram today, alleged to have been sent from Paris and repeated from Chicago by Alexander Sullivan to Patrick Egan, in Lincoln, Neb., which they think refers to the disappearance of Dr. Cronin.

This morning, while laborers were exhuming the bodies of deceased State convicts to remove them to the new prison cemetery, they found the coffin of Jim Burrows, the train robber, who was buried two years ago, empty. The discovery created a sensation, and led to rumors that the bandit may have escaped.

Conclusions Concerning that Mexican Concession of Carlson's.

The Hot Springs Monopoly to Be Knocked Out-To Fix Transcontinental Rates. General and Local Railroad Notes.

sider as an important victory the re-cent feat of Mayor Carlson in securing from the Mexican government a con-cession for the building of a railroad through a section of Lower California Mr. Carlson, who is president of the San Diego and Phoenix Railroad pro-ject, is expected to reach home Monday, as he will return direct from Mexic City. Until he arrives the exact de-tails of his concession will not be learned. It is known, however, that he went to ask for not only a right-of-way and a land grant ten miles wide, but also to ask for a money subsidy of $12,000 a mile. If this is obtained, and the money can be raised for build-ing the road to Mexican soil, at or near Tia Juana, it is the purpose to push the road eastward, just south of the boundary, keeping in Mexican territory as far as possible before diverting the line toward Yuma. It is said that the line toward Yuma. It is said that the route is practicable. If San Diego would now stop running after false gods, and concentrate its efforts on one scheme, a railroad might be pushed through to eventual completion. The allegation that the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe companies both sought in vain for the concession which was so easily secured by Mr. Carlson, is only another fable.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 29.—(By the Associated Press.) Receiver Payne, of the ciated Press.) Receiver Payne, of the Northern Pacific, arrived in the city this morning, and is now closeted with Receiver Oakes. It is asserted that Payne's presence in the city has nothing to do with the labor question, but there is no doubt the matter will be discussed before his departure.

SCRAP HEAP

John L. Truslow, commercial agent for the Santa Fe at Santa Barbara, visited Los Angeles headquarters yesterday, and was amazed at the elegance terday, and was amazed at the elegance of the company's new quarters. There is nothing in Santa Barbara quite up to the Bradbury building's style.

Melville J. Carr, a ticket-broker of Aspen, Colo., is visiting Los Angeles, accompanied by his wife.

checks as promised. The checks in payment of the deferred rolls were sent out on the 27th, and they will all be cashed by Monday. Nearly all the bonus required by the projectors of the Little Rock, Hot Springs and Texas Railway, from Litprojectors of the Little Rock, Hot Springs and Texas Railway, from Lit-tle Rock, Ark., to Paris, Tex., via Hot Springs, has been raised, and the con-struction of the road seems assured. The citizens of Little Rock are raising a fund of $75,000, and Hot Springs lacks only $5000 of the $50,000 which it was re-quired to raise. There is only one road running into Hot Springs at present. This line was built from Malvern by Diamond Joe, and is able to charge ex-cessive freight and passenger rates; as essive freight and passenger rates, a cessive freight and passenger rates as it has no competition.

A meeting of all transcontinental lines will be held in Chicago January 4. The avowed object is to settle all grievances and arrange for a maintenance of passenger rates. The Southern Pacifics signed the call for the meeting, and is apparently in earnest in extending the agreement of the Notthern lines to maintain the old basis of rates after January 1. It is believed Nothern lines to maintain the old basis of rates after January 1. It is believed the Canadian Pacific will be present at the meeting. The one obstacle to agreement is the claim of that road to a differential on all through business, and the other lines are yielding their objections in the interest of harmony General Manager K. H. Wade, of the Southern California Rallroad Company, has issued a general notice that the general offices of the company have been removed to the Bradbury building.

The San Dlego Union of Friday prints the following:

"Bascom A. Stephens, the erratic, the volatile, is again likely to draw the public gaze toward him. He has returned privily over the Mexican border to San Diego, and for several days past has led a life exempt from public haunt, escaping recognition by means of personal disguise and the obliteration, his once fluffy mustache. An absorbing desire—to learn when he should be joined by the new partner of his sorrows, the recent Mrs. McClery of Los Angeles, constrained Stephens to interview the officers of the Carlos Pacheco, yesterday, and they recognized him through his disguise.

"When Stephens deserted his wife and family in Los Angeles and weat to Ensenada with his spiritualistic friend, Mrs. McClery, he announced that he would begin the publication of a monthly to be called the Mexican Fruit-grower. He is said to have enlisted the sympathy of Editor Box of the Lower Californian, who gave him paper, etc. Other partles assisted Stephens in various ways, and he made prints the following:

She is expected to arrive on the next steamer, to join her Bascom here. Her husband, good easy man, lives in Los Angeles, and he has been so far aroused as to hint of applying for a divorce.

"Meantime, while Stephens is skulking about to escape a warrant of arrest, his lawful wife and children are living in utter destitution in this city. Mrs. Stephens was unfaware last night that her husband had returned from Lower California and dil not appear to be overjoyed with the news. She will apply for a divorce."

SOMETHING FRIGHTFUL.

Kelly's Viaduct Mission Becomes a Greater Nuisance Than Ever.

Several weeks ago attention was called by The Times to the filthy condition of the premises about the Kelly Mission at the First-street viaduct. Although the place was in a frightful state at that time it is much worse now, since the rains, and, aside from being a public nuisance, is a menace to the health of the residents of that portion of the city. Officers Stewart and Mc-Graw, who patrol the beat past the mis-sion, have done all in their power to shon, have done all in their power to have it suppressed, but apparently through fault of the city health department, nothing has been done. A reporter, in company with several policemen. looked in at the rear yard yesterday afternoon and found the ground muddy and literally covered with slops and refuse. The stench that arose from the decaying matter was something terhave it suppressed, the decaying matter was something ter-rible, the air being foul with the odor. (New York World:) England seems o be overrun with young Americans who are capturing operatic honors, but few of them can boast of quite such Americanism as Miss May Yohe. She is going to sing in "Christopher Columbus" for one thing, and she is a daughter of the aborigines of this country for another. Her mother, who was a Batchelor, was a pure American Indian, according to Miss Yohe and Bancroft, and from her the singer inherits a peculiarly dark complexion and a rich contraito voice. Her father, however, was Dutch, Miss Yohe was educated largely in Dresden and Paris, lived awhile in this country, has been in Australia, and has just hired a house in London for eleven years, so that the descendant of the braves bids fair to become quite a world citizen in time. who are capturing operatic honor's come quite a world citizen in

dn.10, 20, 40 and 80 acre farms, to suit purchasers, on credit terms at low rate of interest The Property We Offer

Comprises the well-known Chino Ranch, in the center of which is the Town of Chino, on the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, about three miles south of Pomona and Ontario. Surrounding the property is the valley portion of the Chino Ranch, comprising 16,000 acres lying north and east of Chino Creek, subdivided into ten-acre tracts, which have a gradual decline toward the South and Southwest, giving ample natural drainage for successful cultivation.

acres lying north and east of Chino Creek, subdivided into ten-acre tracts, which have a gradual decline toward the South and Southwest, giving ample natural drainage for successful cultivation.

In 1891 the Beet Sugar Company was organized and the Refinery built and put in operation at Chino, in a central portion in reference to the property. The result obtained from the operation of the Factory for the few years past shows a remarkable degree of adaptability of the soil to the successful cultivation of the Sugar Beet, both in amount of production and in percentage of saccharine matter, and also in the efficient capacity of the manufacturing plant. The factory handled during the present season of 1898, 1000 tons of beets per day, and have from 600 to 000 tons per day coming in continuously for the entire campaign, covering a period of nearly four months. It is proposed now to increase the capacity of the Factory by the erection of an additional building and machinery to suit the requirements of increasing production. The returns for the present campaign have been a total yield of over 15,000,000 pounds of sugar, which have been shipped out as fride sugar to be refined elsewhere.

Under a direction specific contract between Mr. Gird and the Chino Valley Beet Sugar (company, a corporation which instituted and operates the Beet Sugar industry, they agreed to purchase from Mr. Gird or his successors all the beets, grown on the ranch for years to come, and at the present date, about November 1st, 1893, Brore the commencement of the next season, a fixed price is established that the factory will pay for the beets at maturity next season. Citrus Fruits and Deciduous Trees.

Orange groves planted on portions of the ranch are coming forward, and clives, figure and controls, prunes, pomegrapates and berries, in fact California fruits of all kinds, seem indigenous to the soil. It is also demonstrated that corn, barley, wheat, and in fact all the cereals and vegetables flourish in this soil and attain a high degree of perfection.

The townsite of Chino, located at a convenient point with reference to all portions of the ranch, is a flourishing California town, with telegraph, telephone and express offices, schools and churches. Means of communication and transportation are ample. The Southern Pacific Railroad runs its main line direct into Chino, and is four miles distant from Pomona and Ontario, on the main overland line, and in addition is the proposed extension which is now assured from Pomona, through Chino to South Riverside and Elsinore.

The following are a few of the advantageous features of the Chino Valley. First, the cultivation of the Sugar Beet which insures a profit; fitteen tons is an everage crop, but twenty tons is not unusual, which is received at the factory at a fixed price of 4.50 per ton, which during this present season of 1890 has averaged the grower from $50$ to 800 per acre net, and clean above all expense of working the ground, planting and harvesting the crop and delivering at the factory.

We invite fund-seckers generally who are desiring to secure profitable investments, to examine this valuable property, which offers field a health, profit or investment.

*Four passenger trains in and out of Chino every day. We invite correspondence.

Beginning on Monday, January 1, The Times will be delivered by carriers at the earliest possible hour every morning, in North Pasadena. Through the courtesy of the Messrs. Beginning Monday, a carrier will leave the Pasadena office of The Times, No. 35 East Colorado street, as soon as the papers are received from Los Angeles each morning. His route will be confined exclusively to the territory lying north of the city limits. Anybody residing in that district, who desires The Times delivered at their residence every morning at an early hour, will please forward their names and addresses to the Pasadena office today. RIVERSIDE COUNTY.

Marriage Licenses Issued—Another Bear Valley Suit.

Because of the heavy rain, Sunday, making the proads very muddy, and causing the belief to be pretty general that the athletic sports could not be held, there was but a small attendance at the park on Christmas afternoon. The two hundred or more who did go to the sports enjoyed a fine game of football, and tried to make up in enthusiasm what was lacking in numbers.

The football game between San Jacinto and Riverside was the event of the day's entertainment, and occupied most of the afternoon. The advocates of the superiority of each team had brought their voices with them, and, upon the scoring of a point by either side, the enthusiasis supporting it were not slow in letting it be known that the point was appreciated. During the struggle, the San Jacinto boys scored two touch-downs, and came off victors, by a score of 10 to Riverside's 6. In the running broad jump (handicap,) Charles S. Dole won the prize. The victory in the 100-yard dash lay between Oscar, Edinger and Charles S. Dole, but whileh won had not yet been decided on Tuseday forenoon.

The maiden mile bicycle race for boys ander 16, the running high jump, throwing of the hammer, quarter-mile-run and maiden half-mile bicycle race: were deciared off, because of darkness, the football match having consumed nearly all the afternoon.

The following marriage licenses were issued yesterday:

F. M. Hallock, a native of Lowa, 24 years of age, and Miss Nettle Logsden, a both reside at San Jacinto.

Frank T. Lewis, a native of Kentucky, aged 40 years, and Clara V. Kerfoot, a native of Virginia, aged 39 years, both residents of Riverside.

Orange County Fruit Exchange, Col-lege building at Orange.

After the usual opening business, Secretary A. F. Snell reported that he had pledged to the association over seventy-nine carloads of oranges from that locality, and that, when it was considered that perhaps there were not imore than eighty-five or placety cor-that locality, and that, when it was considered that perhaps there were not imore than eighty-five or ninety carloads in that vicinity, he thought the association had no reason to complain. President J. A. Scarritt reported that he saw Mr. Jacoby of Los Angeles, who owns considerable property in and around Orange, and that that gentleman said he was hand and glove with the association; that he wanted to dispose of his fruit through the exchange. D. F. Campbell reported that several others, who were yet holding out, would come in in a few days; and when they did, then the association would have control of almost the entire crop. The matter of taking in any new members after the packing season had fairly opened was discussed, and, while there was no official action taken in the matter, the prevailing opinion was, in effect, that it would be an injustice to those already in the association to agree to handle more fruit than had been considered when the shipments to be made through the exchange had been prorated for each locality throughout the jurisdiction of the Southern California Association. President Scarritt, as one of the Committee on By-laws, asked for further time, and the same was granted. The secretary reported that the District Association had put in an order for 150,000 boxes, at 12½ cents each, to be delivered on or about February 1, and that the Orange Association would get its share of this first shipment. He also reported that the contract for wrapping-paper had also been made. A communication frem the executive board, at Riverside, to the trade in the East, in reference to the schedule of sizes, poeting the buyers as to what they may expect from the exchange, was read before the board, and verbally sanctioned.

A communication from C. B. Jeffries of Los Angeles, making a proposition to do the packing for the association, was read and filed.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

Now that so many deseprate characters are tramping over the country under the guise of "unemployed men," who are capable of any outrage, women of suburban homes should be careful who they permit to enter their houses. A lady in Orange had a thrilling experience a few days ago with several of these ruffians. The Orange News gives the following account of the incident:

"On Saturday morning a lady living cident:

"On Saturday morning a lady living in the south part of town had an exciting experience with a couple of tramps. While engaged with her household duties, and alone, she heard a noise at the front door, and on going to ascertain the cause fund a burly tramp seeking entrance. He asked for breakfast, and the lady told him to go to the back door and she would give him some bread and butter and coffee. She then fastened the front door, and, on fast, and the lady told him to go, to the back door and she would give him some bread and butter and coffee. She then fastened the front door, and, on going to the back door, which is covered by a screen porch, found two tramps in waiting at the porch door. Fortunately the door was fastened on the inside. The tramp first encountered at the front door became exacting in his demands. Having probably seen the butcher deliver meat at the house a short time before, he said: 'You have a beefsteak in the house, and we want it and are going to have it.' This raised the lady's ire and she resolved that the tramps should have nothing there that morning, so she quickly stepped into the bedroom and bringing out a double-barreleil shotgun. slipped two cartridges into it before them, cocked it and, presenting it at the face of the aggressive tramp, not over five distant, said, 'Now if you want that beefsteak you must come and take it.' The tramp placed his shoulder to the porch door to force it in and the lady warned him that if the door, gave the least particle the trigger would be pulled and a charge of shot would enter his body. He then made a motion as if to draw a pistol, when she cautioned him that before his hand could be raised he would be a dead man. 'Well, you are a plucky woman,' he exclaimed, and the other tramp, who had been a quiet spectator, said, 'Bill, I guess she means business; we had better go.' In leaving they said she would see them again, to which she answered, 'All right; come again and I will have this same beefsteak ready for you.' The lady says she would have fired to kill had not her commands been obeyed. It would be well if the ladies of every house were provided with means of defense against tramps, who, in most cases, are low and desperate characters, capable of any outrage. Our advice to all those whose homes are distant from neighbors is to keep a shotgun handy for selfsprotection."

Ontario Unable to Raise Her Pro Rata-The Cause of the Trouble-The Redlands Postmastership-

On Wednesday afternoon, I. C. Wood of Ontario, selected by the Ontario fruit-growers to represent them, and appointed by the County Supervisors to be assistant manager of the San Bernardino county exhibit at the Mid-winter Fair, appeared before the board with other representatives from Ontario, and stated that the funds asked for from there could not be raised. In making arrangements for the county exhibit at the Midwinter Fair, the County Supervisors appropriated from county the $2000 permitted by law, said that the remaining sum of 0 necessary to make the exhibit, aside from the cost of the exhibits themselves, would have to be raised from the localities making exhibits and requiring space therefor. Consequently from the localities making exhibits and requiring space therefor. Consequently space was allotted according to the importance of the respective-localities as exhibitors. This allotment required that Redlands should contribute $1000; San Bernardino and Highlands, $867; Ontario, $667; Colton, $333; Chino, $333. The Redlands people first thought they could not raise that sum, but the Chamber of Commerce held a meeting, and in two days had the sum of $1300 subscribed, which was subsequently increased. The surplus is to be used to beautify the Redlands section, and make it attractive. Ontario, with the help of Cucamonga, was to secure but two-thirds the sum asked from Redlands, and they report their inability to secure it. They first asked to have the Ontario space allotted to the other sections, but Supervisor Lord took them to task for their apathy, and scored them roundly. They then asked that action in the matter be deferred by the board for one week, or until the meeting on the 2d of January.

It is said that the inability of Ontario's committee to do anything in the way of securing subscriptions to the Midwinter Fair fund is due to disaffection in that locality. Some of the important growers hold much ill-will-will.

REDLANDS. There have been for the past year two candidates in the field for the postmastership for this city—W. C. Phillips and J. C. Reeves. They are both capable men, and either would, no doubt, make an acceptable postmaster. Since the failure of J. B. Glever a movement has been set on foot to secure the position for him, if possible. There is a universal feeling of sympathy for Mr. Glover in his financial distress, and a letter to the two candidates tress, and a letter to the two candidates tress, and a letter to the two candidates for postmaster has been circulated in town and received the signatures of men of all political parties, asking that these men each withdraw from the race in favor of Mr. Glover. He has not amnounced himself as a candidate for the place, and would not enter the contest against the men in the field. The proposition was started independent of any wish or suggestion on the part of Mr. Glover, but it is believed that he would accept the position if it were tendered him. He is a staunch Democrat inmost things, though not a strong partisan. He is an advocate of prohibition of the liquor traffic, and is a member of the City Council, defeating Wallace F. The third string of 100 balls, in the match game of pool between M. Lemp and James Morley was played off last evening, in the Royal Billiard Parlors, on South Spring street. When the play began Morley, the local champion, was in the lead on the two nights' play by nineteen balls. But the tables were reversed last evening, Lemp taking the first 100 balls, and closing the night's play with a lead of twelve balls. It took him just fourteen innings of good, took him just fourteen innings of good, steady play to demonstrate the fact that, on general all-around play, he is the superior of the local champion. Considerable money changed hands on the evening's play, with the odds and sympathy decidedly in Lemp's favor. The final string will be played off on Tuesday evening, January 2, at 8:30 p.m..

Lemp is a young German boy from Syracuse. N. Y., and is not a professional pool-player, as has been stated; but, judging from his play, would soon make one, as some of his combination shots were equal to some of the best made by the crack professional players.

When my little girl was one month old, she had a scab form on her face. It kept spread-ing until she was completely covered from head to foot. Then she had boils. She had forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. When six months old she did not weigh seven pounds, a pound and shalf less than at birth. Then her skin started to dry up and got so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep, but laid with them half open. About this time, at the earnest request of friends, I started using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in one month she was completely cured. The doctor and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, the Cuticura bill was not more than five dollars. My child is now two years old, strong, healthy and large as any child of her age (see photo.) and it is all owing to CUTICURA. Yours with a Mother's Blessing.

WE ARE STILL SELLING

M. S. Hewes's Stock

65c ON THE DOLLAR!

OF HEWES'S PRICE!

Our last Saturday's sale of shoes was so great that it became a matter of town topic. The volume of business in shoes that was done by us in dollars and cents is supposed to have been the greatest ever sold in Southern California in

MEN'S SHOES.

In order to accommodate the Hewes stock, and our own, of Men's fine Shoes, we have found it necessary to add one-half of the remaining space of the Bumiller Block, the space heretofore occupied by our Hats and Gents' Furnishing Departments. You can buy J. S. Turner's line of Men's Fine Shoes, of which there is none superior in the styles he makes, at 65c on the dollar. We have them in every style of last and in every size. Gentlemen should not delay; come in and supply yourselves. We are also the sole agents for the celebrated lines of Edwin Clapp and Lilly, Brackett & Co. Are making a specialty of Men's Fine Shoes and giving this extra space to accommodate our increasing trade. This makes an exclusive department for gentlemen, separate and distinct from the ladies' shoes, and divided off by high tiers of shelving, so that it is now an exclusive shoe store. If you happen to have a hole in you stocking you need not feel the fear of being mortified by some lady glancing at it. fear of being mortified by some lady glancing at it.

The Sale of Our Ladies' and Children's Shoes

Continues unabated, and well it might, for you are buying Wright & Peters' Ladies' Shoes and Dugan & Hudson's Children's Shoes, the finest in the land, at a price that the manufacturer cannot produce them, and they are the very newest, cleanest, freshest and latest goods in Los Angeles.

THE rain put somewhat of a damper on the great sale which we intended starting Tuesday, but during the clear hours the people responded to our announcement, and all things considered our business was phenomenal. Today we commence what we intended on Tuesday in real earnest. We will clear out as much of our stock between now and the first of February as it is possible to sell at a price. We have been in business in Los Angeles long enough to learn that a price, if low enough, will dispose of almost anything. We are prompted to make this sale, first from the necessity of realizing large sums of money that we owe; and secondly, on the first of February we take our annual inventory, and our stock on hand, owing to the accumulation of the Hewes stock and others that we have purchased from various merchants during the past three months has increased it greater than it has been for years.

Come in and see us today before going elsewhere; note the prices at which we are selling merchandise, and that the best. We have been noted for years as being the most liberal cutters of prices in Southern California. We do not stop at anything to accomplish a legitimate object. You will save large sums of money from now until the first of February by making your purchases from us.
